Collectors Enjoy 39th Annual Key Lock & Lantern Convention

Key, Lock & Lantern members arriving at the Comfort Inn in Glenmont, NY on the afternoon of April 8th didn't need to see the familiar marker lamp outside of John & Marie Brainard's room to know that the KL&L convention was getting underway. More than two dozen railroadiana collectors were already roaming the halls, unpacking memorabilia, and visiting with friends. In the lobby, lively discussions about railroading (past and present) were taking place, while many members headed out to the parking lot or back to their rooms for some early trading. Other hotel guests must have thought that they took a wrong turn and stumbled into the crew room at Union Station.

The 39th Annual Key, Lock & Lantern Convention was a huge success, with over 70 KL&L members, guests, and other collectors attending the Saturday events. With almost twenty exhibitors, extra tables were added in the convention room to accommodate last minute registrants. A fair amount of trading took place during the "early admission" period for those members who were registered for the convention. Other collectors, who were invited to attend the swap meet from 10am to 2pm, also found plenty of railroadiana for sale and trade. Most everyone was able to take home something new for their collections.

The KL&L convention is unique in that many members bring memorabilia for display only, and there were several museum-quality exhibits this year. With numerous excellent displays, the competition for the "Best of Show" award was intense, but in the end Pete Gores took home the plaque for his nicely arranged collection of New York Central lanterns and other memorabilia. Additional photos of the displays will be published in an upcoming issue of the Key, Lock & Lantern magazine.

Following the organization's general meeting, the annual railroadiana fund raiser auction was held. There were many donations this year, including locks, keys, china, framed prints, tickets, timetables, advertising items, books, and magazines. Collectors were able to get some good deals on railroad memorabilia, with all proceeds going to support Key, Lock & Lantern.

Once the last railroadiana auction lot was delivered to its happy buyer, convention participants took a short break to enjoy sandwiches and refreshments provided by Diane Hamilton. With most of the trading done, many members took the opportunity to visit with their fellow collectors, and

Thank You to KL&L Members

Although there was still a chance of snow in the forecast for April 8th, many KL&L members made the trip to Albany for the annual Key, Lock & Lantern convention. As I walked into the Comfort Inn on Friday afternoon, it was obvious that this year's convention was going to be a good one. The halls were already buzzing with activity, as collectors unpacked memorabilia and visited with fellow KL&L members. This atmosphere continued through Saturday, with the convention room filled with excellent displays, a lively auction, railroad movies, and plenty of good conversation. Many thanks to the collectors who brought displays, donated auction items (or bid on them), and also to everyone who made this event a success simply by coming. I'm already looking forward to next year, and I hope that even more people will be able to attend our 40th annual convention.

As noted in the last edition of the KL&L News, membership renewal forms were sent out early, in the latest issue of the magazine. Many members have sent in their dues early, and have renewed at our new "Contributing" membership level. A number of people have also included additional donations with their renewals, building a solid financial foundation that will allow for the expansion of the magazine in the very near future. On behalf of VP-Membership Marie Brainard, the KL&L Board, and myself, I would like to thank everyone who has provided this support. It is encouraging to see that so many members are interested in the future of our organization.

Good luck at the auctions and flea markets this season, and as always, feel free to e-mail comments, suggestions, news items, and magazine contributions.

Museums to Celebrate Virginia's Railroad Heritage

The history of Virginia's railroads will be celebrated on May 14, 2011, through a collaborative effort between Roanoke's railroad museums and historical groups. Roanoke Rail Day will include a variety of exhibits and activities at the Virginia Museum of Transportation, the Norfolk and Western Historical Society Archives, and the O. Winston Link Museum. From telegraphy demonstrations to face painting for children, railroad history buffs and their family members will all find something of interest at this event.

Virginian Railway electric locomotive number 135, the only remaining example of the EL-C class, will be moved from the Virginia Museum of Transportation to the O. Winston Link Museum for the weekend, and will be the centerpiece of the festivities there. Activities at the Link Museum will include 1/8 scale train rides, antique model train displays, slide shows, and more. A night photo session with the Virginian locomotive is planned, and the museum's gallery of photographs by O. Winston Link will be open throughout the day. Festival hours are 10am to 2pm, and the museum's hours are 10am to 5pm.

The Virginia Museum of Transportation, located a short stroll down Roanoke's Railwalk from the Link Museum, will also host a number of special events. Railroad artist Andy Fletcher will meet with visitors and sign prints, the Roanoke Valley Model Engineers will operate several train layouts, and blacksmithing demonstrations are scheduled throughout the day. Train rides will also be offered, using the NRHS Roanoke Chapter's restored diesel locomotives. The museum's regular exhibits will be open for viewing as well, including Norfolk & Western's former excursion locomotives 611 and 1218. Hours are 10am to 5pm.

The Norfolk & Western Railway Historical Society's James N. Gillum Archives, home to a huge collection of historical documents, will be open to the public from 8am to 4pm. The society's collection includes engineering and mechanical plans, maps, timetables, ledgers, advertising materials, and train sheets. Admission to the archives is free.

The David & Susan Goode Railwalk is an attraction in itself, following the Norfolk Southern mainline for 1/3 of a mile through downtown Roanoke. The linear park, which includes railroad history displays and interactive exhibits, provides an excellent and safe vantage point to watch modern railroad action. The Railwalk is always open, free of charge.

For more information about Roanoke Rail Day, and the various museums, visit the Virginia Museum of Transportation web site at www.vmt.org, the O. Winston Link Museum web site at www.linkmuseum.org, and the Norfolk & Western Railway Historical Society web site at www.nwhs.org.

Second Annual Lock Show to be Held in Lancaster, Pennsylvania

With last year's show a success, the promoters of the Lancaster Lock Show have planned another event for 2011. The Second Annual Lancaster Lock Show will be held from 9:00am to 4:00pm, on July 16, 2011, at the HOST Resort in Lancaster, Pa. In addition to antique locks, other types of hardware and railroadiana will be offered for sale.

Early bird admission during dealer set-up hours on Friday afternoon is once again available, along with group discounts. The HOST Resort is located on Route 30, in Lancaster, Pa, which is only a short drive from the various railroad museums in nearby Strasburg. For more information, visit the show web site at www.lancasterlockshow.com.

Amtrak Announces Schedule for Exhibit Train

Amtrak has announced the schedule for the first three months of the nationwide tour of its 40th Anniversary exhibit train. As reported in the last issue of the KL&L News, this special train contains displays of timetables, uniforms, dining car china, and other memorabilia from different periods in the history of Amtrak. Photos and multimedia presentations tell the story of Amtrak and its employees, and a gift shop offers videos, books, and other Amtrak souvenirs.

The tour begins in Washington, DC, as part of the National Train Day celebration on May 7, 2011. On May 14th & 15th, the train will be on display in Lorton, Va, after which it will travel to Baltimore, MD on May 21st & 22nd. Philadelphia is the next stop, on May 28th & 29th, followed by a visit to Perryville, MD on June 4th & 5th.

Amtrak is celebrating its 40th anniversary in 2011 with a number of events, including a nationwide exhibit train tour.

locomotive #406, repainted into its original scheme, serving as a cab control car on the rear. All of the equipment was refurbished at Amtrak's Beech Grove maintenance facility.

The train will continue on tour through next year, and the remainder of the schedule will be announced as it is arranged. If any changes to the tour are required, they will be posted on Amtrak's web site. The progress of the train may also be followed online on Amtrak's Facebook and Twitter pages.

For updates on the exhibit train schedule, more information about the displays, and an overview of the railroad's history, visit Amtrak's special 40th anniversary celebration web site at www.amtrak40th.com.

Amtrak's exhibit train is scheduled to visit stations across the country, starting at Washington Union Station.

The train will then move to Harrisburg, PA for display on June 11th & 12th, before an extended stay at Strasburg, PA for June 18th, 19th, 25th & 26th. Springfield, MA is next on the timetable, on July 9th & 10th, followed by New Haven on July 16th & 17th. The train then travels up the Shore Line, with stops at New London, CT on July 23rd & 24th, and then Providence, RI on July 30th & 31st.

The unique exhibit train consists of three modified Heritage Fleet baggage cars, originally used on the Santa Fe, a former Union Pacific sleeper that will house the train's staff, and an Amclub car that has been converted into a gift shop. Pulling the train will be P40 locomotive # 822, with former F40PH to share news about recent auctions, shows, and unusual finds. Once again this year, railroad movies were shown, following the close of the railroadiana show and swap meet. Dave Hamilton presented a DVD with various old films, including the West Shore RR, Catskill Mountain Branch, Jersey Central RR, the Delaware & Hudson Ry, and several lines in the midwest.

39th Annual Key Lock & Lantern Convention

However, the highlight of the program was George Cook's DVD of movies that he shot during the 1960's. Those who attended last year's convention enjoyed George's films, and everyone was hoping to see some additional footage. From trips on the Denver & Rio Grande to steam powered shortlines, the audience was given a glimpse into a long-vanished era in railroad history.

The "Best of Show" award went to Pete Gores for his display of memorabilia from the New York Central RR.

The annual Key Lock & Lantern Convention provides the opportunity for collectors to meet and share information.

This year's convention was enjoyed by all who attended, thanks to the efforts of convention organizers John & Marie Brainard, the KL&L members who brought railroadiana for display or sale, and the many donors who contributed to the fund raiser auction. Plans are already in the works for the 40th Annual Key Lock & Lantern Convention in 2012, and collectors can look forward to another great event. Photos courtesy of Marie Brainard, Jeremy Tuke, & Dave Hamilton.

The railroadiana fundraiser auction is a convention tradition, with all proceeds going to support KL&L.

Plenty of Railroadiana at NYCS Historical Convention

Severe weather and flooding across upstate New York didn't put a damper on the New York Central System Historical Society's annual convention in Albany, NY, held over the weekend of April 30th. The skies cleared for the group's excursion on the Adirondack Scenic RR on Saturday, and the railroadiana show on Sunday was held as planned. This event traditionally attracts exhibitors who don't set up at the big railroadiana shows, so there is usually an opportunity to find something different there.

This year, there was a good mix of railroadiana dealers, local collectors, and NYCS Historical Society members offering memorabilia for sale. As expected, most vendors brought a fair amount of New York Central material, but other lines were represented as well. Dining car china and silver were among the artifacts that were popular with buyers, as well as employee timetables and manuals. Those who had ridden on the previous day's excursion were able to find timetables from the Adirondack Division that covered their trip, and several other railroad historical societies offered books on local subjects.

The New York Central System Historical Society holds its convention at a different location on the railroad each year. A railroadiana show which is open to the public is usually part of the convention program. For information on future events, visit the society's web site at www.nycshs.org.

Local railroad historical societies and collectors offered a variety of books and memorabilia from the region.

KL&L Dues & Officers Approved at Annual Meeting in Albany

The meeting of the Key, Lock & Lantern Board was held on April 8, 2011, in conjunction with the annual convention. The officers and trustees, as listed in KL&L Issue #161, were approved, with the exception of Ken Andrews, whose resignation was regrettably accepted. Several nominations were received for vacancies on the board, and additional nominations from the membership are invited.

Basic dues will remain at $25 for the 2011-2012 membership period. A new $30 contributing membership level was added, and due to increases in postage and expenses, basic dues will increase to this amount for the 2012-2013 year.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved, as was the report of the VP-Membership and Treasurer. The actions of the board were ratified at the General Membership meeting on April 9, 2011. Copies of the minutes of the meetings, and the Treasurer's report are available to current KL&L members upon request.
